The Businesses In Your Neighborhood Are Part of The Community Too!

The corner store where you shop for milk and bread, the corner garage where you get your gas should also be a part of your Neighborhood Watch program. If there is a heavy saturation of businesses in the area, the Business Association or several businesses should start a Business Watch. If there is just a few businesses, the Neighborhood Watch group should include those businesses in the Neighborhood Watch program.

What Does a Business Watch Do?

Businesses can meet monthly or by-monthly.
Exchange information on potential crimes.
Invite interesting police officers to speak.

Form a telephone chain of the businesses in the block and inform others that there may be shoplifters in the area.

Everyone Loses With a Situation Like Shoplifting Shoplifting, or shrinkage as some call it, hurts us all with higher prices. Have a lecture on how to apprehend a shoplifter.

Help Businesses Stop Kids Loitering & Underage Liquor & Beer Sales... Be a part of the solution, not the problem.

Where Does The Business Watch Meet?

In some cases a restaurant in the near area might have a back room, or a nearby church might have a meeting hall. This kind of situation helps all involved. This kind of meeting helps all concerned.

A Class on Counterfeit Money

The FBI, Secret Service have classes showing counterfeit money and the various places to look on the U.S. currency for bogus bills.
